

There are cheaper ways to provide internet service to rural areas than BPL. For example, allocating free UHF radio spectrum would stimulate sales of wireless local loop. BPL wipes out huge chunks of radio spectrum which are needed for future mobile applications. The result is a net loss of economic activity. Has the commission considered BWP (broadband over water pipes)? Just kidding.